TruckPay's CEO Barry Honig said, "we are thrilled to have Jack join our team. His more than 35 years of experience in aggregates and ready-mix production and logistics will prove invaluable to us as we continue to develop and deploy our World Class TruckPay logistics platform." Jack said, "I'm delighted to have been asked to join the TruckPay Advisory Board. I believe that TruckPay's state of the art, enterprise class software, will not only be able to completely eliminate the use of paper tickets from both domestic and international operations, for all of the industries that TruckPay serves, but will also provide us, and TruckPay's other customers, with a front-to-back solution for dispatching and tracking deliveries, a market place for engaging independent owner-operators and subcontractors to do the deliveries, and an ability to quickly pay all trucking vendors with either the click of a mouse or through interfaces to third-party systems like SAP." Jack went on to say, "I'm extremely impressed with the can-do and customer-first culture that Barry has instilled at the company. It is great to work with a technology firm that believes that software should be flexible enough to adapt to the customer's needs, rather than the customer having to adapt to the software." Barry Honig said, "In these uncertain times of COVID, it is more important than ever for the aggregates, ready-mix, scrap metal, recycling, demolition, and agricultural industries to be as digital as possible, so that drivers and site personnel don't have to pass paper from hand-to-hand or to touch commonly used surfaces. All of us at TruckPay, are happy to do our part to help reopen the economy safely.", Barry concluded.
